ABOUT SERVICEBENCH MOBILE TECHNOLOGY

ServiceBench Mobile technology helps you connect, optimize and automate your service company resulting in improved field technician performance and profits!

Making field technicians more productive means identifying and optimizing the way they perform their core functions. It also means moving or eliminating non-core tasks like filling out paperwork and calling the service office to provide and get job updates, technical service information or to order parts.

Service companies that empower their technicians with real time customer, product, parts ordering with connections to suppliers, warranty entitlement and other call resolution information consistently outperform their peers. Simply put, their technicians can complete their work more efficiently and perform more jobs per day with a higher first time call success rate.

Office staff get near instant job updates and can visually see each technician's location for intelligent emergency job scheduling, optimized routing and job assignment.
