Company History and Mission

What Makes Curry UNIQUE?

100% OF DEADLINES MET, GUARANTEED.

ALWAYS WORK WITH A RESPONSIVE HUMAN WITH LONG TENURE.

95% CUSTOMER RETENTION OVER 3-YEAR PERIOD.

1977/early 1978

Sandy Cohen and her partner, Jack Ebert, bought a quick copy franchise called Curry Copy Center.

1992

Paula bought Sandy's ownership of the company and became the new owner of what is now known as Curry Printing.

Curry was founded by Sandy Cohen and Jack Ebert in 1977. Sandy bought Jack's share of the business in 1985 and became the full owner. Loyal clients returned month after month, and the business grew steadily year after year.

Paula Fargo, Sandy's daughter, began working full-time in 1987, after earning her M.B.A. at Loyola University. In 1992, Paula bought the company from Sandy and became the new owner of Curry Printing.

In the years since Paula bought Curry, there have been staggering changes in the printing industry. Technological advances have brought about dramatic increases in quality, speed and productivity. Curry has very little turnover, and has an extremely strong, talented, and professional staff. Everyone at Curry looks forward to the future and the many new challenges that await us there.

Women/Minority Owned Business Certifications

When you work with Curry Printing as your MBE/WBE-certified vendor and partner, you can rely on our years of stability. Since 1989, Curry Printing has continuously withstood the increasingly stringent process of becoming certified as a woman/minority owned business.

Organizations come back to Curry Printing time and again because we are prompt and accurate both in filing MBE/WBE-related paperwork to government agencies, and in filing monthly status reports to our clients.

We do our part to protect your projects from bureaucratic snags and snafus. Government contractors and nonprofits alike will tell you that we go out of our way to deliver superior quality with a faster turnaround. Even beyond this, we provide a higher level of professionalism and we always deliver what we promise. This is why so many organizations begin using us to fulfill contractual requirements and continue to return to us long after the contract ends.

Testimonials

"They actually read my copy and let me know if something seems off...not that I expect them to be my proofreader, it's more like they share ownership of my client's brand and it matters to them. Their work is pristine. If you want your customers to know you pay attention to detail, it's reflected in your materials printed by Curry Printing."
